OBITUARIES

[Of members of the Class who have died since the last Report]

* ARTHUR HARRIS BREWER

Born in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, November 20, 1874, the son of John Davis and Nannie Roberta (Harris) Brewer.

He prepared for College at Hopkinson School in Boston. In College he was particularly prominent in athletics, playing on the Freshman and Varsity football team, and being captain of the Varsity football team in his senior year. He also rowed on the Class Crew. He received his A.B. in 1899 as of 1896.

After leaving College he took a trip around the world, and then settled in Mexico, where he became interested in mining, banking, and warehouse business.

He was married on June 8, 1904, to Flora Geist at Guadalajara. His wife and two daughters survive him.

He died in Guadalajara, Mexico, June 1, 1927, as a result of being shot by a Mexican assassin.

* EDWIN HACKER BROWN

Born in Worcester, Mass., July 29, 1875, the son of Edwin and Mariana Mifflin (Earle) Brown. He prepared for College at Daltzell's School, Worcester. After receiving his A.B., he attended the Worcester Polytechnic Institute and received the degree of S.B. in 1898. He taught for a time in the Worcester High School, then engaged in engineering and mining work in Alaska and Spain, and drafting work in Minneapolis, finally forming a partnership of Hewitt and Brown, architects and engineers.

During the World War he worked with the American Red Cross Bureau of Camp Service, and was director of the Bureau in Washington. He had been director and secretary of the American School of Architects since 1923 and was a member of the Building Code Committee of the Department of Commerce and president of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States.

He was married on June 1, 1912, to Susan Christian, who, with two sons, survives him.

He died of pneumonia in Wayzata, Minn., April 21, 1930.

 GEORGE MATTHIAS BUSCH*

Born in Buffalo, N. Y., September 30, 1871, the son of Jacob and Regina M. (Glasser) Busch. He prepared for College at the Buffalo High School. He left College in 1895 and entered the general contracting business in Buffalo, and from 1901 to 1903 was in the soft-coal mining business in Pennsylvania. In 1904 he took up the general contracting business again at Williamsport, Pa., under the firm name of Busch and Stewart, doing such work as railroad construction, road building, etc.

He was married in 1900 to Anna E. Miller, of Williamsport, who, with a daughter and son, survives him.

He died in Williamsport, Pa., July 5, 1929.

 EDOUARD FRERE CHAMPNEY*

Born in Ecouen, France, May 4, 1874, the son of James Wells and Elizabeth (Williams) Champney. He prepared for College at Berkeley School, New York City.

After his graduation he studied for four years at the École des Beaux Arts in Paris, and on his return to this country he entered the office of Carrère & Hastings, and was later associated with E. L. Masqueray of St. Louis and Howard & Galloway of San Francisco. He specialized in exposition work and designed the buildings or was chief of design at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of St. Louis in 1902, the Lewis and Clark Exposition of Portland, Oregon, the Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle, 1907-1909, and the Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, 1913-1915; he also drew the plans for the Cathedral of St. Paul and the Pro-Cathedral of Minneapolis. In 1909 he started his office at Seattle, Wash., where he had since practiced. He was the author (with another) of "Romances of Old Belgium," 1915, and "Romances of Old Japan," 1917.

He was married May 19, 1923, to Mary Alice Robbins, of Greenfield, Mass., who survives him.

He died in Berkeley, Calif., on June 4, 1929.

 HAROLD RET CLARKSON*

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, September 20, 1872, the son of James S. and Anna (Howell) Clarkson. He prepared for College at Phillips Exeter Academy.

He was with the Class of 1896 for two years, then left College to enter business, and for a number of years acted as secretary to his father in political and commercial work. In 1902 he went to Montevideo, Uruguay, and from 1903 to 1910 was engaged in the diplomatic service at the American Legation there. He then returned to Newark, N. J., and became associated with the Whitehead and Hoag Co. of Newark in the business of novelty advertising, in which he was engaged at the time of his death. He was unmarried.

He died in Newark, N. J., March 17, 1927.

 JOSEPH POTTER COTTON*

Born at Newport, R. I., July 22, 1875, the son of Joseph Potter and Isabelle (Cole) Cotton. He prepared for College at the Rogers High School in Newport, R. I. Years in College, 1892-1896. Degrees A.B. and A.M. in 1897 and LL.B. in 1900. He married Jessie Isabel Childs, February 24, 1905, at Philadelphia, Pa. Children, Jessie Isabel, November 29, 1906, and Joseph Potter, Jr., October 13, 1908. He died March 10, 1931, at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.

After graduating, Cotton taught for a year in the English Department of Harvard College, and received his A.M. degree in 1897. He then entered the Harvard Law School, receiving the LL.D. degree cum laude in 1900. He was then admitted to the New York Bar, and took up general practice in New York City.

In 1907 Cotton became a member of the firm of Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff, continuing that connection for a year. He then practiced alone until 1910, when he formed a partnership with the late Senator Spooner under the firm name Spooner & Cotton. In 1919 he became a member of the firm of McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin, with former Secretary William Gibbs McAdoo the senior member of the firm. In 1921 Mr. McAdoo moved to California, and Cotton became senior member of the firm of Cotton & Franklin, of which firm he remained a member until he became Under-Secretary of State.

Cotton's career as a lawyer was brilliant and financially successful, and his position at the Bar was preëminent. He was active in semi-public work, and before the war he had been counsel for the Alaskan Engineering Commission, and for the New York State Commission on Workmen's Compensation. From 1915 he was consulting counsel for the Federal Reserve Board, and continued in that position until his association with the State Department in 1929.

Cotton's war service began as counsel for the Emergency Fleet Corporation under General Goethals. He resigned shortly after General Goethals' resignation. He then joined the Food Administration under President Hoover, and became chief of the Meat Division with headquarters in Chicago. In this position his work carried him over a wide territory in the United States and abroad. In 1918 he became European representative of the Federal Food Administration. He was also a member of the Interallied Finance Council.

After the war Cotton returned to the practice of the law, maintaining meanwhile an active interest in educational and university affairs. He was a trustee of the Public Education Association of Antioch College and of Bennington College for Women. In 1926 he acted as chairman for New York in the five million dollars endowment campaign for the Harvard Law School. His address at the dedication of the addition to Langdell Hall of the Harvard Law School, on September 25, 1929 (reprinted 33 Harvard Alumni Bulletin 780, March 26, 1931) will be long remembered.

On May 24, 1929, Cotton was appointed Under-Secretary of State by President Hoover, which position he held until his death. He had already gained the regard of the President, but the appointment is reputed to have been largely at the personal instance of the Secretary of State. Cotton had been on terms of intimacy — professional, political and personal — with Secretary Stimson, and the appointment combined the President's desire to call distinguished citizens to important posts with the Secretary's desire to magnify the position in charge of a man in whom he reposed personal confidence. The unwritten history of the State Department bears the impress of Cotton's personality and effectiveness. Through his hands passed every paper destined for the Secretary of State, and his activities covered a wide field. He had much to do with the preparations for the London Naval Conference, and during Mr. Stimson's absence in London he virtually conducted the State Department in matters outside the sphere of the Conference, and was the voice of the State Department in this country with respect to the attitude of our government's delegation abroad. In the words of the Secretary of State, he "rendered service of literally inestimable value to the government," and "among his fellows in the State Department he won a position which was entirely unique."

His death followed a series of operations which even his vitality was unable to withstand.

 ARCHIBALD COX*

Born in Smyrna, Del., November 26, 1874, the son of Rowland and Fanny Cummins (Hill) Cox. He prepared for College at St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire.

After receiving his degree in 1896 he entered the Harvard Law School and received his LL.B. Degree in 1899, then was admitted to the Bar in New York and was associated for a time with the firm of Tracy, Boardman and Platt, engaged in the general practice of law. He then began practicing law for himself, succeeding the practice of his father who was the author of "Early American Text Books on the Law of Trade-marks," so his practice largely developed to matters of unfair competition, trade-marks, copyrights, and patents, and during the practice of his profession he became recognized as an authority on such branches of the law and conducted important cases.

During the war he served as government appeal agent on the Selective Service Board in New York City. For many years he was president of the Board of Education in Plainfield, N. J., chairman of the Committee on Industrial Property of the Merchants Association in New York and at the time of his death was a member of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital of Plainfield, and also a member of the Northern New Jersey Transit Commission.

He was married on June 7, 1911, to Frances Bruen Perkins in Brookline, Mass., who, with seven children, survive him, his eldest son being a member of the Class of Harvard 1934. He died at his home, 1010 Rahway Road, Plainfield, N. J., on February 28, 1931, after a long illness.

 FRANCIS DUFFIELD*

Born on October 23, 1873, the son of Henry Martyn and Frances (Pitts) Duffield.

He prepared for College by tutor. In College he was a member of the Class Crew. After receiving his degree he entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, and received his M.D. in 1900. He took a surgical internship in Bellevue Hospital in New York City, and began practicing medicine in Detroit in 1901.

Confining his work to Pediatrics he started the Child Welfare Department for the Detroit Board of Health, on which Board he served for eight years as commissioner, and was chairman of the Medical Board of the Women's Hospital and president of the Wayne County Medical Society. He was a member of the American Medical Society, the Detroit Pediatric Society, and the Detroit Athletic Club.

He was married October 13, 1900, to Helen Kerr Muir, who, with three daughters and one son, Alexander M. Duffield, '29, survives him.

He died suddenly of heart failure in Detroit, Mich., January 17, 1927.

* WILLIAM GOODMAN

After receiving his degree he was with the Fall River News and then the Fall River Herald, and in 1902 he entered the Harvard Law School and was graduated in 1905. He then entered the office of H. A. Dubuque in Fall River.

In 1907 he formed a partnership of Fuller and Gray, which lasted until Mr. Fuller's death in 1917. In 1908 he was elected Alderman-at-Large in Fall River, and served five two-year terms, and during the latter two terms was president of the Board of Aldermen. In 1917 he was elected Registrar of Deeds in Fall River District, Bristol County.

He was married, October 1, 1918, to Blanche Rose Amiot, who survives him.

He died in Fall River, Mass., August 9, 1929.

 LEVI HEYWOOD GREENWOOD*

Born in Gardner, Mass., December 22, 1872, the son of Alvin M. and Helen R. (Heywood) Greenwood. He prepared for College at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. He left College at the end of his sophomore year, and after a trip around the world became associated with the Heywood Brothers-Wakefield Company, of Gardner, later becoming a member of the executive committee of this company; also president of the Gardner News Company.

In 1909 he was elected to the Massachusetts Senate from the Third Worcester Senatorial District and served five terms. During the years 1912 and 1913 he was President of the Senate. During the war he was assistant executive manager of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, resigning to take the position of ordnance district chief in charge of the procurement, production and inspection of and payment for ordnance supplies manufactured in the New England District.

He was a director of the Columbus Electric and Power Company, the First National Bank of Boston, First National Bank of Gardner, the Galveston Houston Electric Company, the Houston Electric Company, and the Paduca Traction and Light Company.

For a few years after graduation he was a clerk in a financial house in Wall Street, and resigned when he took up the management of his own affairs. He entered the officers' training camp in Plattsburg in 1917 and went to France in September, where he spent two months in the British Machine Gun School and was for a time with the First Division. Later on, for a period of seven months, he was with the Forty-Second Division, until wounded. He was promoted to captain in April, 1918, and after his discharge from the hospital was assigned to the Army of Occupation. He returned home with his company in May, 1919, being discharged in June.

He was a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club and Fencers' Club of New York City, and also the Travelers' Club, Paris, France.

He was married three times, and his daughter Audrey, born August 5, 1897, is the Class Baby.

He died in New York City, November 18, 1926.

 JOHN SWIFT HOLBROOK*

Born in Boston, March 4, 1875, the son of Edward and Frances (Swift) Holbrook, and prepared for College at Callissen's School, New York City.

After receiving his degree he spent two years studying landscape architecture at Columbia University, and in 1898 was appointed United States Attaché to the French Service of Parks and Gardens for the Paris Exposition of 1900.

He then traveled through Egypt, Italy, and Germany, and spent the summer of 1901 studying in England at Kew Gardens and visiting the principal English estates. On his return to America he formed a partnership with John R. Brinley for the practice of landscape architecture and engineering. In 1906 he gave up his profession to become vice president of the Gorham Manufacturing Company, silversmiths, of New York and Providence, and also of the Silversmiths Company; in 1919 he was elected president of both these companies, and retired in 1921 to care for his own affairs, having his office in the Turk's Head Building, Providence, R. I.

He was also at one time treasurer of the Maiden Lane Realty Company, director of the National Protection Company, and the Venturi Alarm Company, the Industrial Trust Company, Bigelow Kennard Company of Boston, and chairman of the Rhode Island State House Commission.

In November, 1898, he became connected with the law firm of Hamline, Scott and Lord in Chicago, and became a partner in January, 1902, and also was a partner in the successor firm of Scott, Bancroft, Martin and Stephens until 1922, when he became assistant director of the Budget in Washington, D. C., until 1925. He then took up the practice of law in California, residing in San Mateo.

During the war he served as captain, U. S. A., and was assigned to Finance Service in Washington in August, 1918, being a member of the Board of Contract Reviews and Governing Sales Board, and later, from March, 1919, to June, 1920, as a civilian, he was a finance member of the War Department Claims Board and also general counsel for Director of Finance.

He married Marion Buckingham Ream, February 18, 1903, and was divorced in April, 1918; in May, 1924, he married Edna Davis in San Francisco, and was divorced in March, 1929.

He was killed by a railroad train on February 13, 1931, in French Lick, Ind.

 ARTHUR CLINTON WADSWORTH*

Born in Bridgewater, Mass., July 3, 1854, the son of Dura and Olive (Wentworth) Wadsworth.

He attended and was graduated from the Bridgewater High and Normal Schools and the Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, N. Y., then became a teacher in schools at Bridgewater, Woburn, Randolph and Lawrence, Mass., for nine years and for ten years in Brooklyn, N. Y.

As he always wished to study at Harvard, he entered the Class of '96 in 1894 and thus became its Senior Alumnus, as he called himself when he received his S.B. Degree in 1897 as of 1896. In 1897 he became headmaster of the newly organized Russell School in Cambridge, where he continued as headmaster for more than twenty-seven years up to July, 1924, when he retired at the age of seventy years. From 1897 to 1901 he spent his spare time in study and took the examinations of the University of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio, in absentia for the Degrees of A.M. and Ph.D., which were granted to him in 1901.

As a token of the esteem held for him by his former pupils, Wadsworth Hall was named for him in the Russell School and a suitable bronze tablet erected in his honor. The last few years of his life he had been intermittently associated with Wadsworth Howland & Company in Boston on the investigation of supply of art materials in New England schools.

He was married December 25, 1890, to Mary Robinson Winslow, in Roxbury, Mass., who, with a daughter, survives him.

He died in Roxbury, Mass., November 3, 1930.

* JOHN WARREN

Born September 6, 1874, in Beverly, Mass., the son of John Collins and Amy (Shaw) Warren. He prepared for College at Noble's School.

After graduating, he entered the Harvard Medical School, receiving his degree in 1900. He then became assistant in anatomy in the Medical School, and from 1901 to 1908, demonstrator of anatomy; from 1908 to 1915 he was assistant professor of anatomy, and from 1915 until his death, associate professor of anatomy.

From 1911 he had been University Marshal of Harvard University. During the war he served with the Medical Reserve Corps, receiving commission as first lieutenant March, 1916, and as major, April, 1917. He served as surgeon in Madison Barracks, New York. He was inspector of Medical Officers' Training Camp, Camp Greenleaf, and saw service in various other camps. In April, 1919, he was commissioned major in the Medical Reserve Corps.

He died at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, July 17, 1928.

* PRESCOTT WARREN

Born in Cambridge, Mass., February 19, 1874, the son of George Kendall and Mary Ann (Caldwell) Warren.

He prepared for College at Kendal's School, Cambridge, and Phillips Academy, Andover. He left College at the end of his junior year and entered the publishing business with Lamson, Wolfe & Co., and then with Richard G. Badger & Co. In 1898 he went into the advertising business in Boston and continued in it until 1906, part of the time being located in New York City. He then went into the employ of the Stanley Motor Carriage Company at Newton, and in 1912 became vice president and director of the company. He continued in the automobile business until 1923, then entered the real estate business, being connected with Bonelli-Adams Company, in Boston.

He was married, April 6, 1896, to Frances Stanley, of Newton, who, with a son and three daughters, survives him.

He died suddenly August 11, 1926, at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston.

* BRUCE WYMAN

Born in Boston, June 15, 1876, son of Ferdinand A. and Harriet A. (Bruce) Wyman, and prepared for College at Chauncy Hall School, Boston.

He joined '96 in its sophomore year, and received his A.B. summa cum laude with the Class. In 1897 he took the A.M. degree, final honors, and in 1900 the LL.B. degree cum laude at the Harvard Law School.

He was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in 1900 and was appointed a lecturer at the Harvard Law School. During the years 1903 to 1914 he was an assistant professor and a professor in the Law School; in 1914 he retired and resumed private practice. He had been counsel for several railroad and steamship lines, and was the author of numerous law books. In recent years he had been secretary of the board of trustees of the Portia Law School for Women, Boston.

He was married in Cambridge, June 30, 1902, to Mary Ethel Andrews, who, with a son, Andrews, Harvard '26, and a daughter, Rosemary, survives him.

Wyman had accepted for the various events in our Thirtieth Reunion; three days before he died, the Class Secretary received a letter from him stating that it was impossible for him to attend on account of serious illness. He died in Waban, Mass., June 21, 1926.
